Introduction to seminar:

Region Västra Götaland, in partnership with REVES, organises a first seminar to discuss possible systemic relationships between the traditional social economy movement and the new third sector/solidarity economy. Such relationships should be seen as the common ground on which to build a new approach to social and sustainable local development, in partnership with local public authorities.

In fact, the financial crisis first and the economic crisis later on have shown the weakness of the present economic mainstream and the vulnerability of the social model. It seems therefore worth to look into existing and potentially new alternatives that are able to re-shape relationships between the social and the economic, thereby bringing people and ethic behaviour to the centre of actions.

Following the REVES tradition, the seminar will concentrate on a number of selected local experiences to provide food for thought for a larger debate which could finally result in proposals for possible pioneer initiatives at local and European level.
